All-Conference Women's Soccer Teams

Cornerstone's Baldwin, Madonna's Johnson Named Offensive/Defensive Players of the Year

Grand Rapids, MI -- After helping lead her team to the WHAC regular season championship, Cornerstone University senior forward Lena Baldwin has been named WHAC women's soccer Offensive Player-of-the-Year by conference coaches. Baldwin led the league in all three offensive categories this season with 18 goals, nine assists and 45 total points.

Cornerstone's title run snapped a six-year run by Madonna, who finished second and boasts the WHAC Defensive Player of the Year, sophomore Andrea Johnson. Johnson anchored a Crusader defense that was second in goals allowed and goals against and tied for first in shutouts with nine.

Golden Eagle head coach Randy Strawser was named the conference Coach of the Year after guiding his team to the league title and an undefeated season. At 15-0-2 and 10-0-2 in conference play, Strawser's squad is the top-seed heading into the league tournament this week.

Strawser was also recognized by his peers as the WHAC Coach of Character. In the first season of the award, it is presented to the coach who best exemplifies the five core values of the NAIA Champions of Character Initiative; respect, integrity, responsibility, servant leadership and sportsmanship.

In all, four Golden Eagles were named to the league first team followed by three Madonna Crusaders. Third-place finisher Siena Heights garnered two honorees.
